PERSONAL STATEMENT

In my art, I create intricate three-dimensional mixed-media pieces that explore the interplay between raw materials and man-made industrial objects by constructing whimsical sculptures from salvaged materials. I am particularly intrigued by subjects some might find creepy or disturbing, such as masks, puppets, bats, insects, and body parts. I Draw inspiration from the Surrealist and Steampunk movements and analyze diverse resources such as photographs, biological illustrations, and scientific texts to inform my work. I aim to create compelling representations of the world's mysterious, bizarre, and sometimes frightening creatures. Each piece is defined by rich textures that invite interaction and reflection, to be appreciated as a whole or for its distinct components. As a visual storyteller, I aim to inspire others to take notice of the small details and intricacies in everyday life that I find captivating.
